

“Constant and True . . .” New Student Orientation Guidelines

The “Constant and True . . .” New Student Orientation is designed to help you transition smoothly into university life and set you up for success in your academic journey. These guidelines cover important aspects such as attendance expectations, conduct standards, and respect for diversity. The habits and attitudes you form now will shape your entire university experience. We encourage you to approach these guidelines with an open mind and a willingness to engage fully in the orientation process.

Attendance

You are required to attend all required student activities. You are not permitted to leave campus unless you are participating in a “Constant and True . . .” activity.

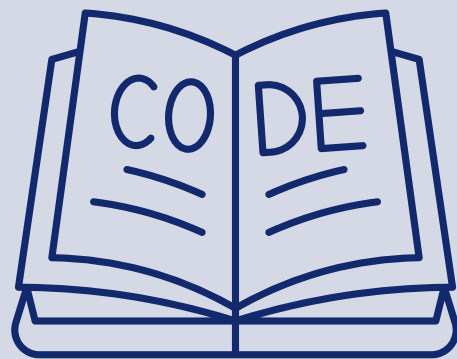

Academic Advisement

You will be advised regarding your Fall 2024 academic programs. You will have an opportunity to meet with your academic success coach to develop course schedules and discuss your academic plan for the semester.

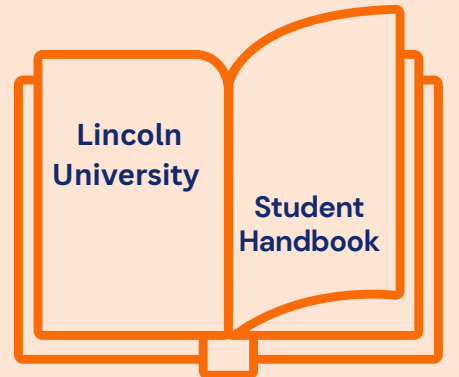

Student Conduct and Dress

You are expected to abide by the Lincoln University Code of Student Conduct. You are also expected to dress appropriately for all activities.

Student Handbook

You are expected to review the Lincoln University Student Handbook.

Fall Semester

Classes begin on Monday, August 19, 2024. Class attendance is mandatory. Review your class schedule and locate your classrooms before the first day of class.

Curfew

The established curfew hours are 12:00 midnight nightly. You should be in your room by 12:00 midnight. This procedure is in place to help ensure your safety on campus. Violations can result in a disciplinary action.

Residence Halls

You are required to stay in your assigned residence hall and are expected to comply with all residence hall policies. Periodic room checks by community advisors or peer mentors will be made. If you violate the rules of the residence halls (curfew, visitation, etc.) and the code of student conduct, you will be subject to disciplinary action which may include being dismissed from the program and placed on probationary status for the fall semester.

Peer Mentors

Lincoln University students will be available throughout the program to answer questions and assist you.

Web Site

The Lincoln University web site (www.lincoln.edu) has a wealth of information about the history of the university, university policies, financial aid, academics, etc. Take time to become familiar with the site. It can be a useful tool to help you understand university programs, policies and procedures.

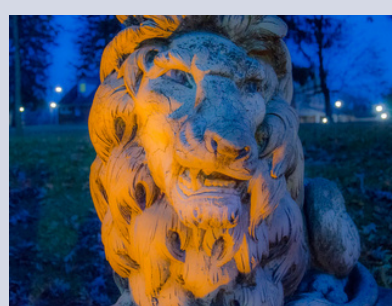

Visitation

Off-campus visitors are prohibited. Room visitation is permitted during the hours of 7:00 p.m. – 12:00 midnight. Residents must sign in their guest with the Community Advisor on duty and present an ID. Students must collect their ID and leave the building by 12:00 midnight.

Lion Card

If you did not get your Lion Card during Lion Link-Up, you should obtain your Lion Card from IT during “Constant and True . . .” week. You are required to use your Lion Card for all meals in the dining hall and to present the card to Lincoln University staff or administration when required.

Parking

Freshman students are not permitted to bring vehicles to campus. If you have questions or concerns, please email us at lpublishsafetydepartment@lincoln.edu.
